What We Believe but Cannot Prove: Today's Leading Thinkers

As humans, we tend to assume that we can see, feel and experience everything there is to be perceived in life. Since birth, we 're conditioned to believe that we 're a superior, infallible race of beings that can control everything – even if we suspect deep down that we can ' t. But I ' ve always felt that there is much more to existence.

We Cannot Separate What We Believe From What We Do

Who we are, is what we believe. As you were growing up, you may have been told over and over that you were good at doing something. You believed it.
Similarly, if you constantly tell people they are doing a good job, they will eventually believe it even if, in the beginning, they have doubts about their ability.

We believe, therefore, that our conversion is not our work. It is entirely the work of God ' s grace.
Rejection of the gospel is, however, entirely our own fault.

Why do we believe some women and not others?

First, 23 and 24 are not two separate scriptures. 24 is a continuation of 23. Second, in 23, we first believe that what we ask for will come to pass, and in 24, we are to confess it until we have received it. We are to believe that we are receiving it when we pray, while the thing we desire "shall" come to pass in the future, in God ' s timing.

trustworthy Are doctors right when they tell us vaccines are safe? Should we take climate experts at their word when they warn us about the perils of global warming? Why should we trust science when so many of our political leaders don't? Naomi Oreskes offers a bold and compelling defense of science, revealing why the social character of scientific knowledge is its greatest strength—and the greatest reason we can trust it. Tracing the history and philosophy of science from the late nineteenth century to today, this timely and provocative book features a new preface by Oreskes and critical responses by climate experts Ottmar Edenhofer and Martin Kowarsch, political scientist Jon Krosnick, philosopher this age of supposed scientific enlightenment, many people still believe in mind reading, past-life regression theory, New Age hokum, and alien abduction. A no-holds-barred assault on popular superstitions and prejudices, with more than 80,000 copies in print, Why People Believe Weird Things debunks these nonsensical claims and explores the very human reasons people find otherworldly phenomena, conspiracy theories, and cults so appealing. In an entirely new chapter, "Why Smart People Believe in Weird Things," Michael Shermer takes on science luminaries like physicist Frank Tipler and others, who hide their spiritual beliefs behind the trappings of science. Shermer, science historian and true
